BOY SHOTS SELF

Kearney Lad Died on Way to Altoona Hospital.

Tuesday afternoon Frank Tedrow, ten-year-old son of a miner at Kearney, died in the depot at Huntingdon while en route to the hospital at Altoona. Several hours previously the lad had shot himself through the head but just how the accident occurred is unknown as the only witness was a baby brother.

The mother, who was on the porch, did not hear a shot but suddenly the boy rushed from the house, falling into her lap. Blood streaming from a small hole above the left eye told the awful tale. A physician was summoned and it was found that the bullet had split the skull, carrying fragments of bone through the scalp. He was placed upon a train at Riddiesburg but died shortly after reaching Huntingdon. The body was prepared for burial and taken to the saddened home Wednesday morning. His parents, four brothers, and a sister survive.

A loaded revolver in a cupboard in the diningroom, where the two children were playing, was the direct cause of his death. One of the mysteries of the affair is that the revolver was found on the shelf, which was too high for the boy to reach and no chair was found near.

CANDIDATES ENDORSED

Anti-Saloon Leaguers Hold Meeting Here.

An Anti-Saloon League meeting was held in the Methodist Church at this place Tuesday night which was supposed to be composed of delegates from the three counties that make up this Senatorial district. It was attended by two state officers, the Chairman and Secretary of the Somerset Committee, a large delegation from this county, and a few from Fulton.

Inadequate representation from the other counties was the cause of no action being taken along the line of endorsing a Senatorial candidate. The Bedford County Committee, which had already endorsed John T. Matt as the Democratic candidate for the Legislature, endorsed D. W. Prosser as the Republican candidate for the same office.

The three Senatorial candidates from Somerset County, Knepper, Miller and Endsley, were ordered here and were on the ground but were not called to the meeting. Endsley had already received the endorsement of the Bedford County Committee. The end is not yet.

Dr. M. W. Carter

Dr. M. W. Carter of Belleville, Ill., who had been an annual visitor to Sulphur Springs and Bedford for a number of years, died at his home on Wednesday, May 11, aged 85 years, 11 months and 12 days.

Dr. Carter was born in Bristol, N. H., was a member of an old New England family and a relative of Daniel Webster. He moved to Belleville about 52 years ago and practiced his profession, dentistry, until his final illness. He was the oldest practicing dentist in Illinois. The three other dentists of the town were among his pallbearers.

Dr. Carter was a member of the Baptist Church and of the Masonic fraternity. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. A. B. Egolf of this place; one brother and one sister. The funeral services were held on Saturday, May 14.

Dr. Carter was one of the substantial citizens of Belleville and was very favorably known here.

This evening at Millersville State Normal, Joseph F. Biddle, Esq., of Everett will deliver the Page oration at the 55th anniversary of the Page Literary Society, which is the oldest in the state.

Don't miss the concert in Assembly Hall tonight by the Orchestra and Glee Club. The program to be rendered is one that will prove an evening of pleasure to the music-loving public. Admission 35 cents. Don't forget what these organizations have done for Bedford in the past—they deserve to be well patronized.

The fourth convention of the 8th District, Bedford County Union Sunday School Association, will be held in St. John's Lutheran Church at Cessna at 1:30 and 7:30 p. m. on Wednesday, May 25. Each school of Bedford Borough and Township is requested to send two delegates. An excellent program has been prepared and sessions should be well attended.

ALTOONA EXCURSION

Friday, June 3, Finally Decided Upon as the Date.

Politics interfered with the arrangements for June 4, so the date of the home-coming of former residents of this county now in Blair has been changed to Friday, June 3.

The excursion is going to be a bigger event than was at first anticipated as members of the committee report communications from all sections of Blair County regarding the trip. Many people residing in Morrison's Cove have signified their desire to participate in the excursion and a special train will be run from Henrietta to Brook's Mills to carry those in that section that wish to join the Altoonans and their friends on the trip. The arrangements will now be hurried along by the various committees of the Altoona delegation and preparations for a big day are on foot by the local Board of Trade. Everybody lend a hand and make this "home-coming" a day long to be remembered.

Mrs. Isaac Pierson

Mrs. Anna Margaret Pierson was born in Bedford Township on June 12, 1849. Her parents were David and Sarah (Blair) Pierson and she was intermarried with Isaac Pierson on December 21, 1876.

Mrs. Pierson died at her home on South Richard Street Sunday evening, May 15, at the age of 60 years, 11 months and three days. She had suffered from chronic rheumatism for a long period and this malady gradually increased in severity so that for the last six years she was confined within her dwelling. Her sufferings at times were intense, but she bore her afflictions without a murmur. She exhibited a marvelous patience, and diffused sunshine by her kind words and amiable disposition. Throughout her long years of pain and isolation from the outside world, she received the constant and tender ministrations of a noble husband. Their wedded life was a poem of love and fidelity.

The bereaved husband will "sigh for a touch of the vanished hand" for sweeter far than all of earth's music to him was the "sound of that voice that is still."

She was converted in her girlhood and united in her thirteenth year with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which communion she labored with consuming zeal for her Master. She ever adorned the doctrine of God, her Saviour, by a holy, consistent life. In addition to her piety she was noted for her hospitality and acts of charity. A pure, sweet life has passed out but her Christian graces and kind words will live in immortal freshness and beauty.

Her sudden demise will be lamented by many, as she had a most extensive acquaintance with the people of this county. Beside her husband, she leaves three brothers: Moses A. Pierson, Esq., of this place, Joshua Pierson and James A. Pierson, of Bedford Township.

The funeral took place from her late home Tuesday afternoon and was in charge of her pastor, Rev. W. V. Gance, who paid just tribute to this elect lady. Interment in the Bedford Cemetery. A Friend.

Abel Johnson

He was a member of the 91st Penna. Infantry, served as a Director of the Poor for this county and was a member of Rainsburg Lodge No. 730, I. O. O. F.

His wife, who was Miss Sarah O'Neal, died about 15 years ago and his only living descendant is a grandson, Floyd Lashley of Oklahoma. Two sisters and a half-brother also survive him: Mrs. Catherine Hymes of Everett, who is 85 years of age; Mrs. George Elbin of Elbinsville and Asa of Sullivan, Ill.

The funeral was held yesterday morning in the Methodist Church at Chaneyville, services being conducted by Revs. D. G. Hetrick and John Bennett.

ENTERTAIN PITTSBURGERS

Plans Made by Board of Trade—Attention, Business Men!

Thursday, May 26, is the day fixed by the gentlemen in charge of the Pittsburgh Trade Extension Excursion as the time for their visit to Bedford. The following program has been arranged by the Bedford Board of Trade for their entertainment:

The special train will arrive over the new Midland Railroad at 12:55, at which time all business men of the town and vicinity are requested to be at the station to meet the gentlemen who will make up the party. The object of these visits is for the purpose of getting acquainted with the business men of the towns visited. The first hour of their stay in Bedford will be spent in this manner; the second hour in seeing the town, Bedford Springs, Arandale, and other points of interest.

All business men having automobiles or carriages are requested to have them at the station and use them for the purpose of conveying the visitors.

Special ribbons for this purpose can be obtained from the secretary of the Board of Trade.

Our business men should not neglect being present to meet the excursionists, as the visits of these men will afford an opportunity to get acquainted with the representatives of all the leading business houses of Pittsburgh. The opening of the new road puts us 50 miles nearer Pittsburgh and will place us in closer business relations than heretofore.

Let there be a large turnout at the station on May 26 to meet this excursion.

REV. FATHER D. CASHMAN

Expired Tuesday Evening in Pittsburgh, Following Operation.

Rev. Father Dennis Cashman, former pastor of St. Thomas' Catholic Church, this place, passed away in the Pittsburgh Hospital about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 17. He had been ill since May 1 and about two weeks ago developed symptoms of appendicitis; last Friday he was taken to Pittsburgh and Saturday morning underwent an operation. For a short time following the ordeal his condition was favorable but Bedford friends on Tuesday learned that the end was near.

Father Cashman was born in Ireland 43 years ago and at the age of 23 years was ordained at All Hallows College, Dublin. Following his ordination he came to America and served two years as assistant at Holy Cross Catholic Church, Pittsburgh. He came to Bedford in 1894; here he found a warm place in the hearts of the members of his congregation and many other residents, winning the esteem of all with whom he came in contact.

In January 1908 he was transferred to St. Columba's Catholic Church in Cambria City, where he was beloved by all.

His parents passed away in Ireland. Four sisters and a brother survive him: Miss Margaret of California, Dr. Thomas F. of Washington, Pa.; two sisters of the Order of Mercy at Boston and one in Ireland.

The body was brought to Johnstown yesterday and a requiem high mass will be said at 10 o'clock this morning. Interment will be made in the Calvary Cemetery at Pittsburgh.

The effect upon the people of Bedford of the announcement of the death of Father Cashman showed most clearly the high esteem in which he was held here by all our citizens. He was scholarly and courteous, broad-minded and liberal—in short, he possessed the qualities of the true gentleman and the ideal pastor.

Mrs. Adam K. Pensyl

The community of Cessna was shocked last Saturday morning, May 14, to learn of the unexpected and sudden death of Mrs. Adam K. Pensyl at the home of her son Daniel.

Mrs. Pensyl, whose maiden name was Anna Over, was born in Bedford September 18, 1835. In early womanhood she was confirmed by Rev. Henry Heckerman and united with St. John's Reformed Church, her membership being afterward transferred to St. Paul's Reformed Church, Cessna, in which she remained a faithful member until her death.

On Christmas day, 1862, she was married to Adam K. Pensyl, whose death occurred two years ago. She is survived by an only son, Daniel of Cessna, an adopted daughter, Mrs. E. H. Shoemaker of Altoona, besides a brother and two sisters: John H. Over of Irwin, Mrs. Emma Henderson of Bedford and Mrs. E. Gerode of Aspinwall.

Mrs. Pensyl was a woman of excellent Christian virtues and has left many friends who cherish her memory. She was a kind mother, a devoted wife, and a true friend. THOUGHTS BY THE WAY

There are no great successes without great sacrifices.

The religion that costs you nothing costs too much.

Some think that a virtue is simply an extinct vice.

He can worship nowhere who cannot worship anywhere.

The larger the heart the easier it travels the narrow way.

A man never learns much when he is afraid of his mistakes.

The richest man in this world is the one who takes most joy in human faces.

Try to have kindly thoughts of people and the kind words will take care of themselves.

Life is not dated merely by years; events are sometimes the best calendars.

Life is a lesson in compromise, and we are never further from being satisfied than when we have got all we want.

To act with common sense, according to the moment, is the best wisdom I know.—Horace Walpole.

THE PROPER COURSE

Information of Priceless Value to Every Bedford Citizen.

How to act in an emergency is knowledge of inestimable worth, and this is particularly true of the diseases and ills of the human body. If you suffer with backache, urinary disorders, or any form of kidney trouble, the advice contained in the following statement will add a valuable asset to your store of knowledge. What could be more convincing proof of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills than the statement of Bedford citizens who have been permanently cured?

Mrs. J. Harnishfager, 313 E. John Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "I will confirm all I said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills when I publicly recommended them two years ago. The cure they effected in my family has been permanent. I have also taken this remedy, procuring my supply at John R. Dull's Drug Store, and it has given me great relief from backache and other symptoms of kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. May 20-21

Some Uses for Lemons

A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a small cup of black coffee will drive away an attack of bilious headache. A little lemon juice rubbed on the face, arms and neck at night will not only whiten but soften the skin. A paste made of ammonia and lemon juice applied to the face and hands when lying down for 15 minutes will bleach the skin beautifully. Hot lemon juice and sugar (or hot lemonade) for a cough has rarely been known to fail of giving relief.

WHAT EVERYBODY WANTS

Everybody desires good health which is impossible unless the kidneys are sound and healthy. Foley's Kidney Remedy should be taken at the first indication of any irregularity, and a serious illness may be averted. Foley's Kidney Remedy will restore your kidneys and bladder to their normal state and activity. Ed. D. Heckerman.

PROPHECY FULFILLED

Fancy Becomes Reality—"When the Midland's Done."

A number of years ago, when the Midland project looked as though it might be hung permanently on a peg, J. Gil London, the poet-philosopher, put a prophecy into verse. It was published in the Mountain Echo and is here reproduced:

I wonder, O! I wonder, when the Midland road is done,
If they'll build a gothic station at mouth of Smoky Run?
Will the tarnal locomotive scare the folks along the line?

Will they build a grand cafe where us passengers can dine?

I've a kind of sneaking notion, if the railroad don't kerflop,
That Claysburg will be mentioned as the place to build the shop—
And Osterburg will miss it when all's done and said
If they don't get up and hustle—when the railroad's made.

I wonder, O! I wonder, if they'll run a Sunday train?
If they do—there's lots of people will likely go insane;

For it interrupts the sermon that the parson has to preach,
And knocks all morals skyward, still further out of reach;

So I guess it might be better—I know it can't be "wuss"—

Just write their "nibs" a letter—if they want to save a fuss

"Don't run no trains on Sunday, up or down the grade,

Or the 'bogyman' will catch you, when the railroad's made."

I wonder, O! I wonder if their trains will reach a mile.

Will the "breakies" mash the "dudies" with their everlasting smile?

Will the pigeon-toed conductor knock down a "case" or two,

Or the goggle-eyed dispatcher swear till the air is blue?

Ah, yes! I guess they'll do it for they all are built that way,

And they'll have to ape the others to make our railroad pay;

But I guess we'll wait and wonder, until the track is laid—

Then join the grand excursion—when the railroad's made.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Increases the price of many necessities without improving the quality. Foley's Honey and Tar maintains its high standard of excellence and its great curative qualities without any increase in cost. It is the best remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and all ailments of the throat, chest and lungs. The genuine is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA*WHAT OF THAT?

Tired? Well, what of that? Didst fancy life was spent on beds of ease,
Fluttering the rose leaves scatter'd in the breeze?

Come! rouse thee, work while it is called today,
Coward, arise—go forth upon the way!

Lonely? And what of that? Some must be lonely; 'tis not given to all

To feel a heart responsive rise and fall,
To blend another life into its own;

Work may be done in loneliness work on!

Dark! Well, what of that? Didst fondly dream the sun would never set?

Dost fear to lose thy way? Take courage yet,
Learn how to walk by faith and not by sight;

Thy steps will guided be, and guided right.

Haid! And what of that? Didst fancy life one summer holiday

With lessons none to learn and naught but play?

Go, get thee to thy task, conquer or die!

It must be learned—then learn it patiently.

No help! Nay, 'tis not so. Though human help be far, thy God is nigh.

Who feeds the ravens, hears His children cry.

He's near thee, wheresoe'er thy foot-steps roam,

And He will guide thee, light thee, help thee home.

—Author Unknown.

Virtue in Hot Coffee

It is asserted by men of high professional ability that when the system needs a stimulant nothing equals a cup of fresh coffee, while those who have tried it state that malaria and similar epidemics are avoided by those who drink a cup of hot coffee before venturing into the morning air. Put on hot coals coffee is a disinfectant for a sick room. By some of our best physicians it is considered a specific in typhoid fever.

CONDITIONS IN NEBRASKA

J. D. Dennis Tells of Progress in Western State.

Sutton, Neb., May 13, 1910.

Gentlemen:—Prospects for another large crop in Nebraska and Colorado were never better at this time of the year. The soil is in splendid condition; small grain of all kinds has made a large growth during the last month. There will be a large acreage of corn, which is more than half planted at this time. Horses and cattle have lived in the pasture since April 15 and pasture in Nebraska was never better at this time of the year.

Land values are still rising. Some land here, without improvement, has sold as high as $125 per acre; the cheaper land in the western part of the state and in Eastern Colorado is advancing very fast—scarcely any left that can be bought for less than $20 per acre. So far in 1910 we have sold over fourteen hundred acres of this land. Why don't more of the Bedford County people come west and see what we have here? This is a wealthy state and it is still growing in wealth. Truly yours,
J. D. Dennis.

WHAT A WOMAN WILL NOT DO

There is nothing a woman would not do to regain her lost beauty. She ought to be fully as zealous in preserving her good looks. Embroidery Hints

With the fashion for French embroidered lingerie the scallop as a trimming for underwear in general has gained a largely increased vogue. It is neat and dainty, and gives that touch of handwork with elaborateness which is just what a great many people want. Nevertheless scallops will wear out, and they will tear at the place where one scallop stops and the next begins. To prevent this fold the material back just beyond the edge of the scallop, and do the buttonholing through the double thickness of material. It will last twice as long. It is perfectly possible, too, because the work is not cut out until after it is finished. If it were cut out first it, of course, could not be done, since the material could not be folded in scallops.

A BIG EVENT

The Coming of Pittsburg Merchants Next Thursday.

Of more than usual interest will be the running of the first train over the new Midland Railroad by the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg on Thursday, May 26. The big train, bearing the colors of Pittsburg, black and yellow, is scheduled to arrive in Bedford at 12:55 p. m. and will remain one hour, or longer. Prominent among the "boomers" is Marcus Raub, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

MARCUS RAUB, Chairman, Entertainment Committee.

The occasion will mark an event in local history and in a large measure will be the beginning of a new era of improvement for this growing community. It will be a holiday and the Pittsburg color scheme will no doubt be much in evidence on that day.

Can Talk to Millions

For the first time in the history of this section there will be a scientific demonstration of what seems utterly impossible, when the big special train bearing the members of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg on its tenth stage extension tour makes its stop here.

As has been stated, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, better known as the Bell long distance system, will have a special service available between cars while the train is in motion.

At all stops the train telephones will have direct connection with a monster net work of lines to homes, offices and industries throughout the country. By calling into service 10,480,028 miles of wire, 5,142,692 stations will be connected with the train, all of which can be utilized by the business pilgrims. The train, with its wonderful scientific telephone appliances, will be one of the features of the tour.

A Good Way to Cook Trout

Build your fire and let it burn until you have a good bed of hot stones and ashes. Have your trout, cleaned and washed, ready at hand on anything convenient. Pluck an armful of balsam twigs. Rake out your fire, leaving a base of hot stones and ashes. Upon this base lay balsam twigs till you have a layer from six to ten inches thick. Now put your trout in a row upon this layer, and cover with another layer of equal thickness; over all lay ashes and hot stones. Then smoke your pipe for, say, twenty minutes.

When as last you gently remove the coverings, you will think at first that the trout have not been cooked at all. There they lie, in all their moist beauty, colored as when they first came to your basket. But be careful how you handle them, or they will fall apart, so tender are they. Steamed through and through by the heated essences of the balsam, they give out a faint aromatic redolence that adds a subtle perfection to the flavor.—Bannister Merwin in June Outing.

TO HALLEY'S COMET

O thou, misjudged a criminal of the sky,
Outcast in heaven, homeless, vagrant star,
Foreboding death and awful doom of war,
Men see their burning sins in thee, and cry
In horror of themselves when thou art nigh!
Oh, wing'd with love thou comest from afar,
Perchance the life of worlds borne in thy car,
Young fire to freshen old orbs lest they die!
How sad our earth, and evil—for it sees
Always in the unknown portents it fears!
Is there a planet, circling any sun,
So sorrowful? Or dost thou smile on peace
And love and joy achieved on happier spheres
Where consummations we but dream are won?

Smart Little Accessories Are the Overblouses of Tulle Work Satin.

An accessory a girl can make for herself is an overblouse formed from satin folds in diamond trellis effect. This garment is cut low in the neck, following the lines of a jumper. The folds are of the same color as the dress and must be taken into the belt or sash of ribbon to match. A tall girl could trim a plain skirt with a broad band of trellis a foot or so above the hem of her gown and find it becoming.

One of the prettiest ideas is to trim the top of a décolleté gown with a narrow band of fur sewed to the edge of the bodice and outlining a full tucker of tulle.

A simple flat band of pearl passementerie is a dainty finish to the top of some of the girlish looking frocks in net, messaline or marquisette.

Now that women are provided with coats that open low in the neck the fashion veers round to jackets cut high in the throat, military fashion. Walking skirts with short drapery, giving an apron effect, are smart and

HIS DEATH SCENE.

A Stage Performance That Took Place Under Difficulties.

In an article on barnstorming in the Wide World Magazine P. R. Eaton describes a performance which took place under certain difficulties.

There had been an ice cream social just prior to our arrival in the hall, and no one had cleaned the stage. Mac had a new pair of broadcloth trousers and my scarlet tunic, also new. When a shot was fired he was to fall and before dying confess that he had killed old Fitzgerald.

The juvenile down front was not to speak till Mac had fallen and confessed. There he stood while Mac staggered about the stage looking for a clean place on which to fall. Mixed in with his lines he was making remarks to us in the wings sotto voce, while we were convulsed with laughter at his antics.

"I cannot die—oh, why didn't you have a grass mat?—I must not die—I shall ruin my breeches—I can't die—oh, this stage is afoot with ice cream—I must—not—die."

Here the juvenile put in some side remarks of his own. "Oh, hurry up and die or I'll walk off!"

"Go ahead," retorted Mac, "and bring me a sack. I must—not—die. Well, if I must here goes—it's ruin to your tunic. Perce, and my breeches—oh, oh!" (He went down on one knee, then on one elbow and finally lay full length.) "The deed is done—I confess—I murdered—Old Fitzgerald"—A realistic shiver and all was over, including the ruining of our clothes, as prophesied. The natives said it was the "best and most likeliest death scene that had ever been given in that town."

THE MUSKRAT.

More People Trap This Little Animal Than Any Other.

In America nearly 10,000 people trap the musquash, or muskrat, every year. More people trap this little animal than any other. It is claimed that the greatest number of skins are taken in Minnesota and the Red River district. Most of the pelts are exported.

The skins are very uniform in color, usually a dark brown. However, those of Alaska and the Mackenzie district are very light in color. The black pelts or those which are nearly so come from the southern sections, although occasionally a few are found in other localities.

The muskrat is very prolific. In some latitudes, says Fur News, it has three litters of young in a summer and from three to five young in each litter. The animals are nocturnal in their habits, but are often seen during the day. Musquash, it is said, thrive best in sluggish streams, lakes and marshes. In appearance it is very much like the beaver, and its habits are very similar.

The muskrats that inhabit the ponds, marshes and shallow lakes build their houses of grass, weeds, etc., and plaster them together with mud. The house is built in the shape of a dome and is usually several feet above the water. The musquash that lives along the streams usually has its home in the banks of them. The entrance to this den is almost always beneath the water, but as the burrows range upward the dens are never filled with water except in times of freshets.

Color Blindness.

One thing is definitely shown by the tests that have been made for color blindness in various races—no race, however primitive, has been discovered in which red-green blindness was the universal or general condition, and this is a fact of some interest in connection with the physiology of color vision, for it seems probable that red-green blindness since it is not by any means a diseased condition represents a reversion to a more primitive state of the color sense. If this is so no race of men remains in the primitive stages of the evolution of the color sense. The development of a color sense substantially to the condition in which we have it was probably a prehuman achievement.—Professor R. S. Woodworth in Science.

A Gambler's Philosophy.

"There's no use in trying to buck against bad luck," said the successful gambler as he put down his glass of vichy and milk. "If you see luck is going against you, drop out. If the fickle goddess of fortune is with you, woo her for all you are worth. That's the whole secret of the game. I've been gambling all my life, and I rarely lose. Why? Because I never take a chance against bad luck. Luck is bound to be either with you or against you. You win or you lose. The chances of breaking even are mighty slim. So I never buck bad luck."—New York Times.

How Inspiration Works.

"This sea poem of yours fairly smacks of the salt gale. It is palpably the result of genuine inspiration. You evidently planned it while upon the bounding deep."

"Well, to tell you the truth," said the poet, "I got the idea one day while sitting in a shop having my shoes cobbled."—New York Journal.

Could Have Got It More Easily.

Mrs. Newlywed—"People are saying that you married me for my gold. Mr. Newlywed—What nonsense! If I'd simply wanted gold I could have got it with far less hardship and suffering in South Africa or Alaska.—Scraps.

There is nothing so powerful as example. We put others straight by walking straight ourselves. —Mme. Swetchine.

Some Alcohol Questions

Is alcohol a tonic? No! Does it make the blood pure? No! Does it strengthen the nerves? No! Is Ayer's Sarsaparilla a tonic? Yes! Does it make the blood pure? Yes! Does it strengthen the nerves? Yes! Is it the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol? Yes! Ask your doctor about this non-alcoholic medicine. If he approves, your confidence will be complete.

Dull boys! Dull girls! Dull men! Dull women! Heavy-headed! Downhearted! All very often due to constipation! Yet the cure is so easy—Ayer's Pills. Ask your doctor.

What the Light Revealed.

A story is told of a simple and devout Methodist minister who was not sufficiently eloquent or business-like to be approved by the presiding elder. Through the influence of the elder he felt sure he was appointed to a small and widely scattered settlement where there was much hard work, and the results were necessarily meager. One day he was commenting sadly on the narrowness of his opportunities to a friend, who said gravely that he ought to pray for light that he might see the hand of the Lord in his appointment.

"I have, brother," he answered, "again and again. But so far," he added, with a whimsical smile, "I have had only light enough to see the interfering hand of Elder Brown."

YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Eyeglasses.

"Did you ever notice," queried an optician, "that nearly every person who wears rimless eyeglasses when polishing the lenses with a handkerchief holds the glasses by the nose piece, thus putting all the strain of the rubbing upon the screws which attach the glass to the metal? Of course this tends to loosen the glass and wear out the thread upon the tiny screw. This in turn causes the lenses to wobble, resulting in great discomfort to the wearer. It's strange how little intelligence intelligent people display in simple matters, but then it brings us business."—New York Globe.

Mercury's Accident.

"What's the matter with your office boy?"

"He hurt himself while running when I sent him on an errand the other day."

"Come off! You don't mean to say?"

"I do. He never did the errand, but he found out why a horse had fallen down in the street."—Cleveland Leader.

A Rare Bird Indeed.

"I think I shall learn to like that friend of yours."

"You were favorably impressed by him, eh?"

"Yes, indeed. He watched me playing billiards for an hour yesterday without once suggesting how a shot ought to be made."—Detroit Free Press.

His Illustration.

"Papa, what is faith?"

"Well, my boy, they say your baby brother sleeps, but I've never seen him do it. Yet if I believe he does—that's faith."—Life.

The Dog Question in Nazareth.

Among many incidents of his wanderings through Palestine, recounted by Harry Franck in the Century, is this:

"An American who was in Nazareth long ago," said a native, "told me a strange story. I did not believe him, for it cannot be true. He said that in America people buy dogs." And the mere suggestion of so ludicrous a transaction sent the assembled group into paroxysms of laughter.

"They do," I replied.

The pompous ex-mayor fell into such convulsions of merriment that his rosy face grew the color of burnished copper.

"Buy dogs?" roared his sons in a chorus of several languages. "But what for?"

Never having settled that question entirely to my own satisfaction, I parried it with another, "How do you get a dog if you want one?"

"W-w-w-why," answered the eldest son, wiping the tears from his eyes, "if any one wants a dog he tells some one else, and they give him one. But whoever wants a dog?"

A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR PIMPLES

To remove Pimples, Blackheads, Blotches and all forms of skin eruptions, is, according to a well known physician, a very easy matter; he says that many are afflicted with some one of the above ailments, and are subject to a great deal of embarrassment on account of the unsightly appearance which they present, and recommends the following simple, harmless and inexpensive treatment. Go to your Druggist and get this prescription filled: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces, mix, shake well and apply to the parts affected night and morning, allowing it to remain on the skin at least ten minutes, then wipe off the powder from the skin. Use a soft cloth or sponge in applying the mixture and in from ten days to two weeks your face will be smooth and clear as a marriage bell. Get the Pure Clearola, which is only put up in half-ounce packages. Ask to see it.

Walk

There's nothing like it. Getting in training is easy. Loose, comfortable clothing is necessary.

To begin with, one may walk a quarter-mile.

The following day half a mile should be walked.

Then add a quarter of a mile every day until the four-mile point.

Some may find it an advantage to go up the scale a bit more slowly.

It may be well in many cases to take the half-mile, one-mile, two-mile and three-mile walks several days before attempting an increase.

Medical Value of Oranges

The orange is one of the most wholesome fruits we have.

Its medical properties are not always appreciated as highly as they ought to be.

An orange may be eaten at any time of the day with advantage.

But taken before breakfast it is a helpful laxative.

It has often been recommended as a specific against boils, a large number, as many as eight, being taken in a day.

In influenza it is also useful, as it reduces fibrin in the blood, and better than almost anything it assuages excessive thirst.

THE FUND GROWING

The people of Bedford have responded most nobly to the call of the Board of Trade in the matter of subscriptions for the purpose of securing the location of business industries here, the fund at this time amounting to $6,300.

Bedford for many years has been in the grasp of the "Don't Care" element. Had its people in the past shown only a portion of the aggressiveness that the majority of them are now displaying we might have here a live and populous town. There are doubtless a number of citizens who have not been seen by the committee and who will help increase this fund, but the saddest thing the committee has to deal with is the "mossback," the fellow who refuses to contribute, who has, perchance, amassed a fortune and held public office at the hands of his fellow townsmen and who, when an exhibition of public spiritedness is asked of him, makes the paltry excuse that he is not in favor of the movement and yet has nothing better to suggest.

Happily, these citizens (?) are few and their unwillingness to part with a dollar or two will not stop the movement for a better town and better things. Every good citizen who desires to help his town and, indirectly, himself should see the committee at once and place his subscription on the list.

Get the Habit

It is astonishing what a town can do for itself in the way of industrial growth if the people enter into the work with the proper energy. By pulling together and each one working for the interests of all, and every man contributing according to his means, a large fund can be raised at any time to induce a manufacturing establishment of some kind to locate in your town. And there is no charity, no enterprise, no altruism equal to this method of helping your fellow-men.

But every now and then the interest flags, and while in this quiescent state good things are allowed to get away. Of course, the active members of the Chamber of Commerce are busy business men who are fully occupied with their own affairs, and cannot devote a great deal of time to this purpose. But when they haven't time to fish for industries they should have their lines set and their hooks attractively baited, so that, when a nibble is felt, they can be on the quiver to land something—Punishment Spirit.

Shoes to Last a Lifetime

Say, Mr. Shoemaker, would you rather have your customers speak of your shoes as wearing well, as not running down at the heel, as turning water, and taking a shine; or wag their heads and say nothing?

We'd rather have ours, at long intervals, say: "We want some more paint, and we want Devco." We know it isn't in human nature to paint very often; we don't expect them to come very often; don't want 'em to. All we want is to paint what they have to paint, whenever they paint it; the longer the time, the surer they are to come back. There's business enough in the world; there are houses enough to paint; let 'em take their time.

If we were a shoemaker, we'd make shoes to last half a lifetime, and shoe the whole town.

HECKERMAN LETTER

The Virginia Crops—Saw Monuments Unveiled.

Roanoke, Va., May 16, 1910.

This has been a busy week for Dad; the change from being on a ladder painting from 6 a. m. till sundown to selling Fort Bedford P-Nuts was great. I have been most cordially received on this trip and last week sold every person that I called upon save two. One of these said no and the other, a small buyer, said plenty. The weather has been cool and rainy and many persons that I have talked to think that the comet is going to end the world.

The wheat looks fine and, is in head. The fruit crop all the way from Cumberland to Roanoke will be the largest ever known. Why, at Winchester Cooper Brothers expect to realize from their famous orchards about $50,000. Almost that whole section of country is now planted in fruit, mostly apples of the winter kinds. There are places where one sees nothing but fruit trees, hundreds and thousands of acres all in fruit. The soil about Winchester and down the valley of Virginia is adapted to grow any kind of grain or fruit, and the farmer who is not making money now, not only at and about Winchester but everywhere with wheat at $1.20, corn most a dollar and live hogs at ten cents, ought to be dumped into the lake.

The Polish Americans and all their friends had a big time in Washington last week at the unveiling of two shrines which were dedicated to Revolutionary heroes amid boom of cannon and strains of patriotic music. The Poles not only paid tributes to two noble Sons of Freedom and symbolized the glory of the beloved motherhood, but they added to the beauty of our capitol. President Taft made a short speech and then asked me how politics was in Bedford County.

The parade consisted of thousands of Polish Americans, regular troops and marines from Norfolk and other cities, high school cadets and hosts of all nationalities. These marched in view of the President who was kept from getting wet by the width of the brim on his silk hat. Thousands also lined the sidewalks. An American lady with coal black hair who used to call Bedford home waived an Irish flag at some of the soldiers. I tell you she came 'nigh being arrested, and her promise not to do so again was all that saved her.

In the evening of that same rainy day, a cloud moving rapidly in the direction of the new Willard Hotel proved to be an immense flock of swallows, and they went straight for the open windows. No doubt their leaders got mixed or bewildered and led the flock astray. Very many were killed in coming in contact with wires and by striking the building. Many got inside the rooms and my! what a fuss the bell boys and all other helpers made to get them out.

The Nineteenth Annual Convention of the T. P. A.'s of Virginia was held at Staunton, Va., last week. The boys came with a grin and a smile to cheer up old Staunton who had so signally failed in her tag day because of the very disagreeable weather. The big banquet of the T. P. A.'s Friday night was a grand affair. The membership increased in Virginia during 1909 from 2,400 to 2,700 members. My friend, Dan Sole, from Lynchburg was one of the high much-a-mucks at the convention.

In coming along somewhere near Bassett, Va., I saw a man driving an ox and a cow yoked together and drawing a load of boards while a calf three or four weeks old trotted on behind much as a young colt would. Something new for Dad to see was this.

I spent an hour most pleasantly last Saturday at the home of Dr. J. D. Kirk, who is married to Miss M. E. Gettys of Bedford. She asked about many Bedfordites and was very sorry to hear of the death of many of her old friends. Dr. Kirk has made barrels of money since he came here. Some of these he has headed up. He and Mrs. Kirk will soon start for an extended trip and will take Bedford and California in on the trip. Will visit John Gettys, Mrs. Kirk's brother, who lives in Redlands, Cal., and who recently lost his house and its contents by fire.

Thropp Furnaces to Close

Joseph E. Thropp, proprietor of the Everett and Saxton iron furnaces, publicly announces through an open letter to R. H. Kay that he intends banking his furnaces at Saxton in a short time and will never start them again.

His reason is the alleged persecution of his non-union workers by the union organization which, he says, has greatly harassed his business and caused him much loss. The shutting down of the Saxton furnaces, he asserts, will take $33,000 per month out of the Broad Top coal regions, or $400,000 per year, and he adds that the union organization should be able to compensate the furnace workers and coal miners for the loss of wages sustained by them.

"As Your Fellows See It"

If you judge a man by the clothes he wears—as nine out of ten men unconsciously do, what then about jewelry? Isn't a man who wears cheap jewelry as surely labeled "cheap" as if the word were written on his shirt front in letters of crimson. The touch of refinement that is given by good jewelry—a gold watch, a ring, a pin or a diamond, is unmistakable and it is the reason why good jewelry only should be worn. We keep only the good kind and you will find our prices of a modest profit kind. Diamond Rings from $8 up.

Home Course In Live Stock Farming

XVIII.—Principles of Breeding.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture," "Making Money on the Farm," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press
Association.

ONE of the most important principles of breeding is the law that like produces like. This means that, other things being equal, an animal will tend to produce offspring like itself. Coupled with this is the law of variation, which means the tendency of animals to differ from each other and from their parents. No two animals are alike, and it is a good thing that this is so, since otherwise there could be no improvement.

Like Produces Like.

Keeping these two laws in mind, the chief means of improving live stock must be by selection. The variation in the young animals gives the basis for this selection. The progeny of two parents will differ both ways from the parents—that is, some will be poorer and some better. In general, the number of poorer ones will be about equal to the number of the better ones. Thus in nature little improvement is made, as both the poorer and better animals are used for breeders. With domestic animals man steps in and eliminates the poorer half or more, allowing only a few of the best to reproduce themselves. According to the law of like produces like, the offspring will tend to be like these good parents. But here the law of variation comes in again, causing some of the offspring to be better and some poorer than the parents. In this case, however, the poorer animals will be considerably better than the poor ones of the preceding generation and the good ones will be better than the best of the previous year. Again the poorer animals are discarded and the better ones saved. In this way the standard of excellence is improved from year to year.

To accomplish much improvement by selection must be guided by a man who has a definite ideal in mind. He must know exactly the kind of animal he is working for and should select his breeding stock with this type in mind. In this way is developed a strain of animals that are very much alike in all their characteristics. Though they still tend to vary, these variations are not so marked as formerly, and a more uniform lot of animals results. This uniformity is due in large part to the fact that each parent has behind it a long line of ancestors of similar type. An animal does not get all its characteristics from its parents. Part of them come from the grandparents, part from the great-grandparents and part from more remote ancestors. Clearly, then, the more nearly all these ancestors resemble a certain fixed type the more uniform the offspring will be. It is largely by continued selection that all the improved breeds of domestic animals have been developed. It is this ability to produce uniformly good offspring that makes pure breeds so much more valuable than animals of common breeding.

The tendency of an animal to resemble some of its remote ancestors more closely than its immediate parents is called reversion or atavism. Thus, occasionally a calf of a hornless breed will show horns, or a pig of a certain breed will show a color that is not found in the breed today. Reversion cannot be guarded against. The best that can be done is to prevent the use of reverted animals as breeders.

Mutations.
Any race of living things, whether it be animals or plants, will occasionally produce a mutation, or, as it is commonly called, a "sport." This is an individual differing to a marked extent from the general type of the race or breed. If it is a true sport, it will produce its own characteristics in its offspring, and thus a new strain or breed is developed.

This new strain is distinctly different from the type from which it came, and its offspring show little tendency to revert to that type. The hornless breeds of cattle were developed from sports. The nectarine is a sport from the peach, and the weeping willow is a sport from the ordinary willow. Sports, when of the right kind, are of great value in originating new types and breeds, but they are seldom of any particular value to the ordinary breeder.

Latent Characters.

A point that is of much value in practical breeding operations is the fact that the characters which an animal possesses are not always developed. Such characters are called latent, while the ones that are developed are called dominant. Characters which are latent in one animal may become dominant in his offspring. Thus the milking qualities of a cow are transmitted more surely through her bull calves than through her daughters. The milking characteristic is, of course, latent in the bull, but it becomes dominant in his heifer calves, and in a greater degree than in the original cow's heifer calves.

It is the same way with other characters. In fact, so many latent characters enter in to affect the offspring that a good sire cannot be picked by his looks alone. The great Shorthorn bull Lancaster Comet, one of the great early improvers of the breed, was not a particularly outstanding individual himself, but he possessed the ability of impressing his latent characters upon his offspring for many generations. The standard bred horse Hambletonian did not have a record, but he sired more record horses in the same length of time than Dan Patch has. This does not mean that the selection of high class sires is not important, but it shows that it is not the only point to be considered. These facts show the great value of tried sires. An animal that has shown his ability to sire outstanding offspring is worth five times as much as a young animal that has not been tried. It is a shortsighted policy to get rid of male animals before they have shown what they can do. When a sire of extraordinary ability has been found keep him as long as he is strong and virile. These same points apply to females as well, though not so strongly, as the male is half the herd, while it takes a great many females to make up the other half.

Grading.

One of the most important means of improving a herd is by grading—that is, by using the best kind of a pure bred sire on the females each year. The improvement will be rapid and marked. The offspring of a pure bred sire mated with ordinary females will be one-half pure or even more, since the pure blood will be more prepotent. The offspring of these animals will be three-quarters pure, the next seven-eighths, and so on. It takes but a very few years to develop a herd that are practically pure breeds. These high grade females when mated to pure bred males will produce practically as good offspring as could be got from pure bred females. High grade males should not be used for sires, however, as they do not have the ability to impress their good qualities upon their offspring, while the latent scrub qualities are bound to crop out.

Crossbreeding.

Crossbreeding—that is, the crossing of pure bred animals of different breeds—can often be used to advantage in producing market animals. The desirable traits of the two breeds may be united and a superior type of market animal produced. The champion fat animals at the international live stock show are often crossbreds. When crossbred animals are used for breeding purposes, however, they rapidly deteriorate and the strain soon becomes run out.

The produce of the crossing of two distinct species, such as the horse and the ass, are called hybrids. Hybrids, as is the case with the mule, are often very useful. Hybridization is of little consequence in breeding, however, as hybrids are unable to reproduce themselves.

Inbreeding and Line Breeding.
Inbreeding means the mating of brother and sister, sire and daughter or son and mother. Close breeding means the mating of relatives a degree further removed. Inbreeding has been used to great advantage in developing the modern breeds of domestic animals. In the hands of other than a master breeder, however, inbreeding is sure to result in decreased size, vigor and breeding powers. The safest plan for the ordinary breeder to follow is to let it alone.

The surest method of improving the pure bred herd is by line breeding. This, in its simplest form, is the use of a line of sires of similar type and breeding on the females of the herd. Line breeding results in rapid improvement and the production of a uniform lot of offspring.

Some Mistaken Ideas.

There are a number of mistaken ideas in regard to breeding which are more or less widely believed. One of the most common of these is the belief in telephony, or the influence of a particular sire on subsequent offspring from another sire. A study of the scientific side of breeding shows that this cannot be so, as it is impossible for any particular male to affect the female that future offspring by another sire will be affected.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—Second Quarter,
For May 22, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xiv, 1-12.
Memory Verses, 10-12—Golden Text,
Prov. xvi, 32—Commentary Prepared
by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

For the present we are asked by the committee to pass by the wonderful thirteenth chapter—why, I know not—but we will return to it in a few weeks and have three lessons in it. Although this lesson today gives an account of the beheading of John the Baptist, the sad event evidently took place some time previous. But now, Herod hearing of the fame of Jesus, his guilty conscience tells him that it is John whom he had murdered. He was perplexed because some said that John was risen from the dead, some said that Elijah had appeared and others that one of the old prophets was risen again. Herod said, "Who is this of whom I hear such things?" And he desired to see Him (Luke ix, 7-9). Herod's question, "Who is this?" is an all important one. See also Luke v, 21; vii, 49; Matt. xxi, 10; Isa. lxiii, 1; Jer. xxx, 21, where the question is in connection with the forgiveness of sins, the son of David, the Messiah and the One who is to judge the nations. As our Lord put it to Simon Peter, "Whom say ye that I am?" (Matt. xvi, 15). It should take hold of each one of us, and unless we can from the heart reply as Peter did it will be bad for us. "What is Jesus Christ to me?" is the great question.

In a previous lesson we saw messengers coming to Jesus from John in the prison, but now we have the account of his imprisonment and execution. Herod feared John, knowing him to be a just and holy man, and he heard him gladly and did many things. But Herod had taken his brother Philip's wife and was living with her, and John had told him that it was not lawful. Therefore Herodias had a quarrel (margin, inward grudge) against John and would have killed him, but she could not. But Herod had imprisoned John for Herodias' sake (Mark vi, 17-20). For some idea of what a wicked, unscrupulous woman can do see I Kings xxi, 7-15, and II Kings xi, 1, and consider that Babylon, which is said to be guilty of the blood of all that were slain upon the earth, is compared to a woman arrayed in purple and scarlet and decked with gold and precious stones and pearls (Rev. xviii, 4; xviii, 24). The life of John in prison must have been a sad and lonely one indeed were it not that he had access to God, with whom he had spent so many years in the wilderness. No prison walls can shut out God or the angels, and an eternity of glory will more than compensate for the greatest sufferings of the saints on earth (Rom. viii, 18).

Birthday parties should be happy occasions and innocent affairs, but this one of our lesson was one of the worst on record. It was a great affair, being a supper made by Herod for his lords, high captains and chief estates of Galilee. On this occasion the daughter of the wicked Herodias danced so acceptably to Herod and them that sat with him that Herod promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask. According to Mark (verse 23), "He swore unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom." What an outcome of a drunken revel and a dance! The result of dancing in our times, so often accompanied by drink if not by drunkenness, has never been fully written, but enough has been written to lead thoughtful people to renounce the whole thing and especially the fashionable dancing school. If you care to know, write Dr. Sylvanus Stall of Philadelphia for further information. If the church had a tithe of the zeal of the devil to lead souls astray, how many might by the church be pointed to Him who is able to save from going down to the pit! But where is the zeal referred to in the words, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up" (John ii, 17; Ps. lxxix, 9). The girl went forth and said to her mother, "What shall I ask?" And, being instructed by her mother, she asked for the head of John the Baptist. Quickly it is brought to her, and she carried it to her mother. Did ever a daughter carry or a mother receive so greivous a gift? Yet this is in our day made into a play to entertain thoughtless people. The murder of John meant in due time the murder of Jesus, and the world lying in the wicked one seeks and applauds this kind of entertainment. It is written that the king was sorry, but the sorrow that does not lead to doing right amounts to nothing, and I fear that he has been sorry ever since and will be forever. According to Phil. i, 21, 23, it was a gain to John, a very far better, for he has been well and happy ever since. His disciples took up the body and buried it, but they did not bury John. We never bury people, but only the bodies in which they lived awhile. There shall be a resurrection of all dead bodies, those of the just and the unjust, but there shall be an interval of 1,000 years between (Luke xiv, 14; xx, 35; Acts xxiv, 15; Rev. xx, 5). The disciples of John went and told Jesus. That is the thing to do always and about everything, and then we shall know the peace of God which passeth all understanding (Phil. iv, 6, 7). Then also shall we know what it means to be guided in all things by Him (Prov. iii, 5, 6).

While Waiting

A Chance Meeting and What Happened Between Trains.

By SARA G. IGLEHEART

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

"Two days' limit," said Willis Bates as he looked doubtfully at the ticket. "Can I make it in that time?"

"Yes," and the agent pushed some change through the window and waited expectantly for the next man in the line. "We make close connections. Ten minutes stop at Columbia and twenty at Charlotte for dinner. Jacksonville? Nine-ten." And Bates felt himself pushed unceremoniously aside by a portly man, who was eager to exchange a banknote for the ticket which was being stamped.

"That's your train on the outside track," the agent called warningly. "Better hurry."

As this advice was accentuated by a sharp "All aboard!" and a rush of a few belated passengers toward the outside track, Bates snatched up his hand bag and sprang forward.

"Whew, that was certainly a close connection!" he said grimly as he swung himself on the rear car of the moving train. "If I keep on at this rate I'll get through in time for the sale, and that will mean a thousand dollars in my pocket. Lucky I thought of it."

The parlor car was full, so Bates went on until he found a seat with a loquacious, insistent hotel runner. Just across was a bright looking woman in a plain traveling suit, and he glanced at her with sudden, half realizing inquiry.

But a traveler is always running across faces that look familiar, and his attention was soon engrossed in warding off the advances of the hotel runner.

The train rushed on with the vehement, noisy imperiousness peculiar to southern trains, as though striving to give an impression of terrific speed, and the fine South Carolina dust sifted in through the windows and spread thickly over the dingy plush seats, calling forth handkerchiefs and impatient exclamations from the passengers and swirling now and then into angry clouds at the feeble onslaught of the train boy's broom.

Once he noticed the woman of the opposite seat looking at him inquiringly, as though she, too, was trying to recall something familiar. But when he turned to her she was gazing from the window.

At Columbia he spent the ten minutes in a forced defense of politics and at Charlotte was glad to leave his companion and join the rush toward the railroad restaurant. As a general thing he avoided such places. There were apt to be poor food and service, and not infrequently one was served so late that he could only snatch a few mouthfuls before it was time to hurry for the train.

But here he was agreeably disappointed, and when he went to the desk near the door to leave his 75 cents it was with a feeling of satisfaction at not having been imposed upon. Outside he looked at his watch. It still lacked five minutes of train time, so he walked leisurely down the platform.

As he turned to come back he found himself face to face with the woman who sat opposite him in the car. For a moment they gazed squarely into each other's eyes, then both started forward.

"Aren't you Charlie Holbrook?" the woman asked eagerly. "I thought I knew you on the train."

"Yes, and you are, or was, Alice Durfee," Bates said, no less eagerly. "My, but I'm glad to meet you! Let me see, it's eighteen years since I left the village, and I haven't seen a soul from there since. How are they all--your mother, and Henry Taber, and my cousin, Bob Bates? Bob's the only kin I have, but he and I never did get on well together. Oh, I beg your pardon--" hurriedly--"I forgot."

"My mother died ten years ago," she answered steadily. "After that I came south and have only been back once since. Henry Taber had the postoffice the last I knew, and Bob--"

There was a significant movement across the platform, and Bates glanced at his watch.

"It's time to get on board!" he exclaimed. "We'll finish our talk in the car."

But the woman drew back.

"This isn't my train," she said. "I wait here two hours."

"Really?" with sudden dismay in his voice. "Why, I was counting on a good long talk. Is Bob--your husband--along?"

She looked surprised.

"I don't know what you mean," she answered. "I have never married. I came south ten years ago in search of work and have been teaching school ever since. You'll miss your train."

It was already gliding down the platform, but he neither noticed it nor her warning. In his eyes was an expression of incredulous inquiry.

"Isn't Bob Bates?"

She motioned toward the train.

"You'll miss it!" she cried again; then her hand dropped to her side. "There; it is too late! Was it very important?" anxiously.

"Yes--no--that is, I guess so," he answered indifferently. "A thousand dollars, I believe."

A man with the emblematic S. R. on his cap came down the platform, and Bates called him with a gesture.

"How long before the next train north?" he demanded.

"An hour and forty minutes."

"Good!" turning to her, with beaming satisfaction. "And you have to wait two hours. That will give us plenty of time to talk. Now," with a strange eagerness in his voice, "do you mean to tell me that you did not marry Bob Bates the fall I left?"

"Certainly I did not," wonderingly. "I never married anybody, much less Bob Bates. I never liked that man."

"Strange, and he told me--"

"What?" she demanded sharply.

"Why, that you were promised to him and that--well, what he told me was the cause of my leaving and of my not communicating with any one in the old village during all these years. And to think--"

Here a truck load of trunks was pushed rapidly toward them, and they were forced aside.

Bates caught the eye of a waiting hackman and nodded. A moment later the hackman stood beside the platform, with the driver holding open the door for them to enter.

"A station platform is no place to talk," said Bates genially. "Suppose we take a drive through some of the quiet streets of the city. We have plenty of time." Then he looked at her with a new thought in his eyes.

"I didn't see you in the--" he began, then added hastily, "You haven't had dinner, I suppose?"

"No," hesitating and flushing a little. "I--"

"Oh, I understand," quickly. "You are like me and can't put up with the makeshifts of a railroad restaurant. Now, I'll tell you what," unobtrusively, "I'm about as hungry as a man can be. There's a nice hotel in back somewhere. We'll go to that and have dinner, and then we'll drive about the city and talk until train time."

There was hesitation, almost refusal, on her face; but, feigning not to notice it, he urged her into the carriage and then sprang in himself and motioned for the driver to close the door.

An hour passed and then a half hour, and soon after a train rumbled into the station and then rumbled away. Twenty minutes more and another train arrived and departed. As it disappeared the carriage again whirled up beside the station.

"Has my train gone?" the woman asked anxiously as she reached the platform.

Bates took out his watch and looked at it meditatively.

"I'm afraid it has," he answered. "and my train, too, with its possible thousand dollars. We've been gone a little over two hours. Driver," severely, "you ought not to have taken us so far."

There was grave concern in his voice, but in his eyes was a sly twinkle, which she did not notice. The driver twirled his hat apologetically in one hand, but into the other a generous tip had been slipped, so he was silent.

"It is really too bad," Bates continued sympathetically. "There is only one more train out today, and that goes toward Richmond. But I'll tell you what," as though struck by a sudden solution of the problem, "suppose we take that. You know what you have promised me at the end of three months. Now, what is the use of waiting that long? You have no people, and I have none, and if you go back to that school you have been telling me about it will be to unappreciate employers and at wages that will scarce pay your expenses. I have a good house waiting for somebody to look after it and more money in the bank than I know what to do with. Now, my idea is for us to go to a minister. You know where a minister lives, don't you?" to the driver.

"Yes, sort," grinning. "And then come back and take the train for Richmond. It is a very nice city, and you are bound to like it. How does the scheme strike you?"

Evidently it struck her unfavorably or as something too astounding to admit even of a reply.

"Good!" he said beamingly. "Silence means consent. Now we will drive back to the hotel and write a couple of letters. You tell the school committee that unforeseen circumstances prevented your returning, and I will write that the same kind of circumstances have kept me from attending the sale."

She parted her lips as though to protest and even tried to draw back, but her heart was with this man who had been so much to her youth and who had returned, and in the end she entered the carriage with him and the door was again closed by the driver.

It is said that the groom is usually the one to show trepidation at a wedding, but in this case it was the bride. In a twinkling the whole course of her life had been turned. She was being transformed from a schoolteacher to a wife. But in her breast was that satisfaction at being permitted to give up that struggle with the world which is natural to men and usually distasteful to women. Instead a vision glimmered before her eyes--a vision of home, husband and children--and, despite such gasps as one will take at being swung over a precipice, she was happy.

An hour later this driver was standing on the platform of the station watching the train rumble away toward Richmond. Not until it had disappeared did he climb back to his box and drive toward home. Bridget, his wife, was preparing supper when he came in from the stable.

"Och, Pat," she called in sudden apprehension, "how come yez so soon? It is bad luck yez've been havin' the day?"

"Troth, no, Biddy," catching her in his arms and swinging her about the room and then slipping a crisp new ten dollar bill in her hand. "That's for the new clothes the childers made."

Breaking It Gently

Simkins always was soft-hearted, and when it devolved upon him to break the news gently of Jones' drowning to the bereaved Mrs. Jones, it cost him much paper, ink and perspiration before he sent the following:

"Dear Mrs. Jones--Your husband cannot come home today, because his bathing suit was washed away."

"P. S.--Poor Jones was inside the suit."--Modern Society.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it--heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. ### To Kill Currant Worms

Writing from Middletown, a grower of currants asked State Zoologist Surface whether he can apply hellebore in the form of a spray to rid his bushes of the worms that have started in on their work of destruction.

As to the use of hellebore for this purpose, Professor Surface replied that he had "found it efficient to mix hellebore and flour for the currant worm, and apply it by dusting it on the leaves. Use one part of hellebore with five or six parts of flour; stirred together, when left to stand overnight or a few days, in a closed vessel, like a tin baking powder can, will impart its efficiency to the flour or the entire mixture, and can be used successfully by dusting over the leaves or bushes. This avoids the trouble and expense of spraying and is entirely efficient.

"However, if you should wish to apply a spray rather than a dust for the currant worms, there is nothing better than hellebore for this particular pest, prepared as a liquid, to be applied in the form of a spray, by steeping one ounce of hellebore in each gallon of water, making a decoction. Sometimes hellebore is not so strong, and more may be needed to make this decoction strong enough to kill the pests. However, as they will be off the leaves within less than one-half day from the time the material is applied, if it is going to be efficient at all, it is very easy to make the application and examine the bushes a few hours afterward and see if the worms are still present on the leaves or not. If so, then make the material a little stronger, apply again, and you will be able to get rid of them."
